

Busch Wildlife Sanctuary Executive Director Amy Kight with the team from Collins Development: Matt Ulch, Jeff Collins, and Dean Butters

The sanctuary's board of directors: Charlie Weiss, David Busch, Christine Cooley, Peter Busch, Amy Kight, Dr. Heather Johnston, Gordon Boggie, Deb Duffy, and Jim Casto

NURTURING NATURE

A NEW CHAPTER BEGINS FOR BUSCH WILDLIFE SANCTUARY

Busch Wildlife Sanctuary, a nonprofit organization committed to wildlife rehabilitation and environmental education, celebrated a major milestone in March. Ground was broken for a new 19.4-acre sanctuary in the Jupiter Farms area, set to open in 2023, which will be able to offer a more immersive experience to visitors and help more sick, injured, or orphaned wild animals. The current facility, at just over 6 acres, helps more than 5,000 wild animals and welcomes more than 100,000 visitors each year. A major capital campaign is underway to fund the $15 million facility.

Sunny Quinn discusses the barn owl with David Wilde and Ross Willis.

Kelly Hagar, George Gentile, and Lindsay Meshes

Sheila Schlagger, Jeremy Howard, and Charlotte Delton with their new baby alligator friend

Alyssa Bean with Hannibal the bald eagle

Volunteer Bob Ryder shows the popular baby alligator to Inger and John Kuhs.

David Busch, Amy Kight, and Peter Busch

Sandy Myers and Amy Kight

Palm Beach County Commissioners Mack Bernard and Maria Marino flank Amy Kight.

Justin Howard, Sunny Quinn with a barn owl, and Anthony Strada